disconnect to RECONNEC Reconnect with extended family at evening chats around the campfire. Reconnect with friends on an adventurous hike through cliffs and valleys. Reconnect with your significant other in a secluded cabin or cozy inn. Reconnect in so many ways with a Hocking Hills getaway. It's all here.

Kick off a trip to the 2,356-acre Hocking Hills State Park with a bountiful family picnic at one of several park areas: Old Man's Cave, Ash Cave, the Rock House, Cedar Palis or Cantwell Ciffix. All offer grills, tables, drinking water and shelters available by reservation. Or restaurants in the area are happy to fill your picnic basker.

Here in the State Park, take your pick from trail hiking, swimming, fishing and even archery. The 17-acre Rose Lake, accessible off State Route 374 via a ½-mile hiking trail or from the Hocking Hills State Park Campground, sits among the forest with not a residence or building in sight. Next to the Dining Lodge, a swimming pool is open for public use.

Seasons of fun

Hiking in the Hocking Hills State Park is a true treasure, no matter the season. Families can meander for miles along trails that wind through woods, past porous sandstone cavern wails and beneath the shade of trees. Children will be in awe of walls that have been naturally carved over time and now resemble a sphinx, an eagle and a whale. In winter, icicles and frozen waterfalls dangle from the trees and overhang like holiday ornaments.

Old Man's Cave is a centuries old recess cave and is the former dwelling of early settler Richard Rowe, who the cave is named after Families can sit within the cave where Rowe is said to have lived, then embark again on a trail that will eventually lead them down to Cedar Falls, a spectatular remote area that boasts the region's greatest waterfall by volume. The lower falls at Old Man's Cave are a sight to see, with water cascading neathy into a serene pool of water below.

Another notable area of the park is the Rock House, a 200-foot-long cavern — the only true cave in the park — that is rumored to have once been a popular hideout for criminals, thus nicknamed Robbers Roost.

A family trip to the Hocking Hills isn't complete without a visit to Condès Hollow, an amazing overlook worthy of more than a few photographs. Named after early visitor V.J. Condès, the site offers a Black Hand sandstone cliff overlook situated 200 feet above the valley floor. Kids and adults alike can take in the magnificent view of changing colors in the fall, bountful growth in the summer and snow-covered hills in winter.

Families can explore along the State Park's many hiking trails for miles, which welcome all levels of experience. Nine trails, including sections of the Buckeye Trail, wind throughout the park. Hocking Hills is one of the four Ohio State Parks that has a trail law. Please stay on all marked trails for your safety. There are two mountain bike trails near Cedar Falls — one moderate and one difficult, for a bike ride that suits everyone in your group.

Stay awhile

When it comes to lodging, the natural choice is a family campout, complete with a bonfire, s'mores and fireside stories. The Hocking Hills offers everything from primitive camping sites to luxurious inns and cabins, guaranteeing pleasant kinship in a natural setting.

Any time of year, the Hocking Hills State Park is alive with events, excursions and activities. The famous Winter Hike, held in Jamury, welcomes more than 5,000 hikers to the magnificent region to witness the awesome frozen park and its stumning rock formations, and to listen to naturalists tell its story during a six-mile trek from Old Man's Cave to Ash Cave along Grandma Gatewood's Trail.

When February comes around, couples can join a romantic evening stroll on the Sweetheart's Hike. In March, maple sugaring takes the spotlight when an abundance of maple trees are tapped for delicious, sweet syrup for Maple Sugaring in the Hills, a Hocking Hills State Park event. Meet at the naturalist cabin behind Old Man's Cave Visitor Center to watch staff and college students boil down maple syrup using historical methods. Then, pick up some syrup to take back with you!

Other sites in the area offer the opportunity for enJoyment throughout all seasons. Lake Logan State Park, also in Logan, is one of the best fishing lakes in floin and known for its abundance of pike, bass, bluegill, crappie, saugeye and catfish. Not only fishing, but kayaking, canoeing and boating around the 400-acre lake are popular draws for families in the summer. Two launch ramps provide access to the lake, and docks can be rented for the day. Beachgoers and swimmers can take advantage of the 527-foot public swimming beach on Lake Logan Road. In the winter, visitors can enjoy sledding.

With seven hiking trails, ranging from moderate to difficult, the 2,983-acrc Lake Hope State Park sits within the Zaleski State Forest. Eight bicycle trails weave throughout the park, traversing hills and ravines that will challenge both intermediate and the most skilled cyclists. Horseback riding is allowed on 33 miles of bridle trails.

In spring, summer and fall, the 120-acre lake is a prime spot for row boating, canoeing and kayaking. It also harbors a 600-foot scenic swimming beach that's perfect for low-key gatherings. Fisherman will find bluegill, crappie, caffish and even largemouth bass in the lake. Chilly thrills can be had sledding or cross-country sking. §

The Hocking Hills is home to a smorgasbord of immersion travel experiences. Whether you prefer a seat in the audience or being elbow-deep in a project, you will find your escape here.

Travel back in time to a restored Opera House where the walls vibrate with the sound of world-renowned musicians. Enjoy dinner and a show as the area's newest community theater troupe presents classic and original plays in unique venues. Music meets nature at outdoor, multiday music festivals. Art centers host changing exhibits paying tribute to a wide variety of media and artists.

Stuart's Opera House in Nelsonville's Historic Square Art District features performances throughout the year, which include music, film and theatrical presentations by a local community theater company, ABC Players. Logan Theatre Group presents the collective talents of the troupe in many locales, including dinner theater performances in restaurants around the region.

Outdoor music festivals begin in May and continue into October. Duck Creek Log Jam kicks off the summer music festival season each Memorial Day weekend. The Nelsonville Music Festival follows with non-stop music, including big name headliners, on three stages. Ohio's most unique music festival, the Washboard Music Festival, comes to town every vear in June.

Lancaster Festival is a 10-day music and art festival featuring international music stars every July. Spend four days and four nights experiencing southeast Ohio's very own mint "Woodstock" in August. Rootwire Music and Arts Festival Drings back the flercely independent spirit of that historic gathering in a cascading flow of artistic expression. As the splendor of fall in the Hocking Hills begins its colorful crescendo, the Fall Campout at Duck Creek in October rounds out a very full season of music festivals throughout the Hocking Hills.

Come to the Hocking Hills to lose yourself, find yourself, expand your horizons and transcend your work-a-day life in a place of selfdiscovery and joy.

Villa be amazed to find species from various parts of the world, such as Mexico, the Amazon basin and the far North. The Hocking Hills State Park is the site of several unique species for its Canadian microclimate," says Ohio State Parks Naturalist Pat Quackenbush. "The cool recesses of the gorges, the Hemlock trees and yew bush trees that remained here after the Ice Age remind them of home in Canada."

One such species is the Pileated Woodpecker, which normally inhabits boreal forests in Canada, among other regions. It also is Quackenbush's favorite bird here.

"It is the largest woodpecker in North America. They are fun to watch and don't mind people. When they eat, it sounds like a construction zone," he says of the crow-like bird. "Their call is like a jungle cry — probably one of the loudest daytime forest calls."

The Pileated Woodpecker, in fact, is the logo of the Hocking Valley Birtling Trail, a 100-mile long driving trail of 20 official birding sites, including the Hocking Hills State Park and Wayne National Forest. Along the way, visitors are free to hike and read about the species on birding bulletin boards found at most sites.

Visitors coming from the Columbus area can begin at Clear Creek Metro Park or Wahkeena Nature Preserve, a pocket nature preserve full of woodland warblers and ducks that Quackenbush describes as a "cool little spot" along U.S. Hwy. 33 near Lancaster.

In the Hocking Hills region, Lake Logan is an excellent spot for waterfowl including herous, because of its location on the edge of the hill country — near the 'glacial edge,' a term Quackenbush uses for an area where fields and forests provide birds the best of both words: wooded areas, for protection and shade, and grassfilled areas for food. Clear Creek is another such area, and is home to catbirds: sleek grey birds whose calls can imitate other birds, yet they also emit a "meow" sound. The Trail's last site is Lake Snowden, another lake habitat along State Route 50 in Athens.

Besides birds, there are plenty of other interesting wildlife to see in the Hocking Hills region. Visitor favorities include deep, turkey and eagles on rivers and lakes, as well as raptors. At night, visitors can be amused by flying squirrels, with flaps of skin that help them glide from tree to tree — sometimes as far as 70 to 80 feet, says Quackenbash. "They're the most abundant squirrels in the state, but are rarely seen because thev're norturnal." &

Curves, canopies and conifers. It's why everyone from locals to weekenders to test drivers take to Hocking Hills' beloved byways. Again. And again.

BY JAN O'DANIEL

n 1989, in the pre-Internet and mobile app era, one relied on happenstance, word of mouth and magazine articles for 'best of' travel advice. That was also the same year Car and Driver magazine itst mentioned a now-legendary driving route around flocking flilis State Park.

Dubbed the "Car and Driver Loop," this just-under-14-mile drive put Bocking fills on the proverbal map, Nov, 25 years later, Car and Driver columnist John Philips still calls the loop "maybe the best (driving route) in the world, this side of the Nurburgring," a German motorsports complex.

Reason enough to see for yourself why the Hocking Hills beckon driving enthusiasts to turn ignition and push pedal.

Classic. Coupe. Convertible. SUV. Motorcycle. It doesn't really matter, because traveling to and around here is all about the ride.

Twisty turns, the kind bikers call "sweepers," combined with heavilyshaded, well-maintained roadways and deep-woods scenery provide the ideal backdrop for a transcendent and resplendent tour.

On the road, expect continuous elevation changes, modest traffic, plus plenty of great stops, such as Lake Logan State Park for bird watching, Clear Creek Metro Park for the covered bridge and local restaurants for food and camuraderic.

While always a joy, we suggest taking notouly the famed Carand Driver loop on 185. Rice 64b, but also a few roads less traveled. St. Rices 327, 93 and 328 are equally fun to drive, especially when you let the roads carry you along the many smaller roads linking tiny farming town to tury farming town, flunded by wet and dry creeks, rolling hills and oldeg overth forests.

Remember half the fun is getting here; so leave the freeway when you can. From Wheeling, W.A., keave 170 at Zamesville on St. 18c. 59 S. from Athers, catch, St. 18c. 56; from Cincinsation Northern Kentucky, trySt. Re. 32 (The Appalae Irlan Highway) then catch St. Re. 53 N; and from Columbus, jump on U.S. Hwy. 33.

It's not uncommon for visitors to dream of taking up residence here. So what's it like calling the region 'home'? Here's what the locals have to say.

DEEP ROOTS

hether staying a day, a whole weekend or the better part of a week, something happens when visiting the Hocking Hills. Call it a nudge, a tug or an all-out pull, it's hard to get enough of the remarkable beauty and gentle pace of life here. So it's hardly strange to hear someone say, "I wish I lived here!" which begs the question, "What is it like to live in the Hocking Hills, day-in, day-out, year after year?" In short, the locals say it's everything you'd hope and more.

Paul & Cathy Knoop

It's been 16 years since Paul and Cathy Knoop bought 70 acres near Conkle's Hollow, but waking up surrounded by a spectacular forest is something that never gets old.

"We feel fortunate we have waterfalls and sandstone cliffs on our property," says Cathy. "We leave a lot of things natural like native prairies around our house and drive, so it's just like living inside the park."

Originally from the Dayton area, Paul and Cathy retired to the Hocking Hills. He's a naturalist and environmental educator who still consults with the Appalachia Ohio Alliance; she's an environmental educator for Camp Oty'Okwa.

"We like working with people to help keep the area scenic," Cathy says. "We want people to get out here away from their environments. The area is so different because it's a sandy delta, not glaciated, so there are lots of rock for mations and waterfalls. One thing I always tell people is that it's not about how many rulies you can like, it's about enjoying the view."

Sarolin & Don Griggs

She's lived here her whole life and in all those years (75, if you're counting), Sarolin Griggs never ceases to be delighted by visitors' reaction.

"They're surprised at this little pocket of beauty," she says. "It's just a wonderful place with natural beauty, a slower pace and no push to buy things."

The area is, indeed, extraordinary which may explain why Sarolin and husband Don keep 25 wooded acres on her old family farm. complete with getaway cabin.

"Most people understand our affinity for the area," says the self-proclaimed outdoors gardening gal, "Of course. I tell visitors they have to visit the Columbus Washboard Company here in Logan, too. It's the only washboard factory in the United States "

Jeff Dickerson

Growing up in the Hocking Hills has its perks, says Jeff Dickerson, local radio show host, musician and new vintner. Scenic vistas and serenity for one. Meeting tourists for another. The best thing, though, is living out a dream: owning a family vineyard.

"It's all hands on deck," says Jeff of their first harvest, nearly five years in the making. "Kids. Grandkids. Friends. We got everyone picking."

Conceived by nephew Blaine Davidson, the Hocking Valley Vineyard is the latest chapter in the family's regional story, which began in 1952 when Jeff's father-in-law purchased hundreds of acres of Hocking Hills land.

"Blaine was talking about the property behind his and ours over Thanksgiving dinner," says Jeff. "He was talking about wanting to do something besides cut hav two times a year. and he mentioned a vineyard. A month later he came back with a business model."

The family now tends 3,000 hearty vines replete with tight clusters of sweet, juicy grapes. If all goes well, they expect to open the region's first winery, Hocking Hills Winery this year.

"We're planning tours and tastings and food," Jeff says. "Deli meats, cheeses and, of course, wine. Plus we'll have some trails and maybe some entertainment. We're proud of what we have here. We want to be here for generations."

Marge Saving

World War II was in full swing when Marge Saving, then a seventh-grader, moved to the Hocking Hills region, or "clay country" as she calls it, where her father found plenty of dump-truck work.

"There was so much work we staved," says Saving, who hails from Flint, Michigan, "but we all loved it here immediately."

Marge has spent the better part of her life here, marrying husband John, who passed away 10 years ago, and raising four sons. "My boys are all right here or no farther than Columbus. My brother and sister still live here, too."

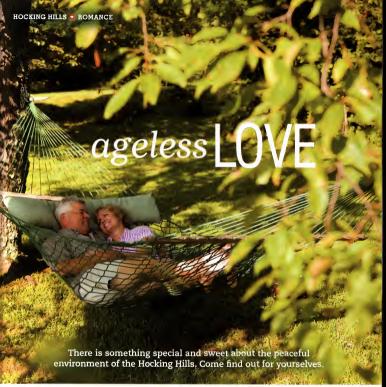

In addition to growing up here, Marge and her family are deeply entrenched in the business community, thanks to her father-in-law who was a traveling hardware salesman.

"He bought a hardware store in Logan." explains Marge, "and then he died 10 years after that so my husband and brother-in-law took over."

When those two retired, Marge's eldest stepped in, followed by her youngest. The family bought another hardware store in Nelsonville in the 1990s and her third son became a store manager.

"We lived for 42 years about two blocks from the hardware store on Main Street in a 10-room house built in 1900," she recalls fondly. "We raised all the boys there and consider ourselves lucky to live in Logan." & pending special time alone with the one you love, sharing new experiences, reconnecting away from the non-stop everyday whirl of jobs, chores, responsibilities and obligations - does that sound wonderful to you?

We're all familiar with the head-over-heels feeling of new love, which can happen at any age. But love has many seasons and all of them can be glorious.

Romance isn't only giving her flowers on Valentine's Day or picking out a special card for his birthday - although those are both nice! It's also romantic to plan a night out, with babysitters booked, for a busy mother or to fix special homemade snacks for his Super Bowl party.

But in today's world, with our busy lives and schedules, sometimes being romantic is just wanting to spend time getting to know someone you love all over again. The Hocking Hills can help you do that, whether your ideal adventure together is filled with outdoor activities and excitement, or filled with quiet hours surrounded by nature. Romance is ageless - and with a trip for two, you're guaranteed to be in good company!

one-of-a-kind EVENTS

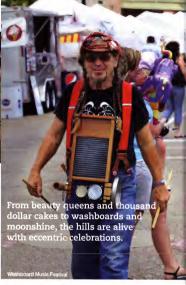

BY STACEY HIGGINS

ust when you thought the Hocking Hills experience couldn't have any more to offer, the region is home to several unique events to add that unforgettable element to your visit. A few of our favorites:

The annual Fireman's Old Time Festival in Laurelville in July brings the streets of the town to life with entertainment, homemade pies and cakes, and a nightly fish fry. Rides and games will keep the young (and young at heart) amused, while live music will have you tapping your toes all night long. Don't miss "Ohio's Most Expensive Cake Auction" during the festival.

Get ready for a unique experience at the annual Washboard Music Festival in Logan every Father's Day weekend. In addition to lively washboard-inspired music, the festival offers arts and crafts, a quilt show, delicious food, rides and games, and a free tour of Logan's own Columbus Washboard Company.

Every summer, Nelsonville Music Pestival brings stellar musical acts to the area for four days of music, artisan wares and a general good time at Robbins Crossing historic village on the campus of Hocking College in Nelsonville. The festival offers multiple stages of well-known and up-and-coming musical acts all weekend in late May, along with camping on site, kids activities, local art vendors, food and a beer garden.

Murray City Miner's Festival celebrates the village's heritage with parades, pageantry and fireworks in late June. Vendors and concessions provide more entertainment for this community event. Throughout the year, the festivals queens host community service events and fundraisers so the event's participants have a year-round commitment to Murray City.

The 'spirited' Moorshine Festival in New Straitsville during Memorial Day weekend features a variety of fun events, including a working Moorshine Still Display, local history museum, flea market vendors, moonshine burgers, moonshine pie, moorshine doggies, camival rides and games, good food, souvenirs, talent show, Cruise-In and two parades. This year, you will be able to purchase genuine Straitsvillle Special, a locally distilled moonshine, as

Take to the Trails

TOP 10 REASONS TO STAY ON THE TRAILS.

Getting lost in the woods will make you late for your spa appointment.

You can't go in the hot tub with a cast on your leg.

There are better ways to see the Hocking Hills from the air than by Medevac.

We can't promise the ranger that rescues you will be a hottle.

Get up close and personal with animals at the Columbus Zoo, not because your foot is wedged in rocks and you can't move. If you fall to the bottom of a ravine there's a good chance critters will relieve themselves on you.

You can't zipline with your arm in a sling.

The Hocking Valley Community Hospital is lovely but the rooms do not come with hot tubs.

If your new bride "disappears" from the trail there's a good chance you'll be the lead story on the evening news and not in a good way.

Pick from accommodations of every type - from rustic cabins to plush B&Bs to hotels/motels - to fit your group's needs.

Get Here — Easily | Your Hocking Hills vacation should be a relaxing experience as soon as you arrive. Now the most traveled entry to the Hocking Hills region has a new double-roundabout to allow traffic to continuously flow from U.S. Hwy. 33 onto State Route 664, the main road to the Hocking Hills State Park. By following the clearly placed "Yield" signs, traffic now moves effortlessly in all directions. As with all driving, be sure to watch for other motorists and drive defensively. While we hope everyone always obeys the traffic signs, there may be someone unfamiliar with the roundabout who misses the Yield sign meant for them. Welcome to the Hocking Hills, now relax and enjoy your vacation.

Save Our Trees: Be A Hemlock Hero

Southeast Ohio's majestic hemlock trees are in danger of destruction. The villain is the Woolly Adelgid, an aphid like insect that has destroyed thousands of acres of hemlock stands throughout the eastern and southeastern region of the Unites States. The destructive insect was first identified in Hocking County in early 2013 and affected hemlock trees were promptly treated.

In June 2013, the Hocking Hills Conservation Association was formed with the purpose of addressing threats to the Hocking Hills' natural resources through coordination and funding. The group is currently focused on the Hemlock Woolly Adelgid (HWA). Representatives from public and private organizations are working together to save Southeast Ohios hemlock trees.

You can be a Hernlock Hero! Apparel is available online at www.HernlockHero.com, at the Hocking Hills Regional Welcome Center and in shops listed on the website. All proceeds of apparel sales go toward the treatment of trees. By getting ahead of the infestation we have an excellent chance of saving Hocking Hills' hernlock trees, but we need your help. Please visit www.HernlockHero.com today and become a Hernlock Hero.
